

FIVE SECRETS HOW PROTECTAPEEL WAS USED TO PROTECT A BOEING 707!

Spraylat International recently assisted Musketeer Solutions in trials at RAF Waddington to protect part of a retired Boeing 707 airframe, which is now used for training purposes. Musketeer Solutions briefed Spraylat on what they needed from a protective coating;

- The aircraft must be protected from weathering during external storage.
- Application should not be too time consuming.
- The aircraft's appearance should not be altered drastically because of the coating.
- The protective coating was needed for at least 12 months.

So... what's the secret to a tough, durable protective coating that meets these needs?

Shhh...1 - Water!

Protectapeel is a water-based product, which means our coating can be applied quickly and easily on to uneven surfaces (perfect for this retired aircraft!) No cutting to size and no wastage... what could be better! Protectapeel dries on to the surface creating a tough, skin-tight film that ensures protection from the elements for up to 12 months.

Shhh...2 - Viscosity!

Protectapeel has a specific viscosity that allows you to apply it either by roller or by airless spray - giving you the choice of application!

Shhh...3 - Colour!

Protectapeel was easily colour matched to the airframe's original colour - meaning once dry, no one would even know the coating was there!

Shhh...4 - Surface Tension!

How does Protectapeel protect? Simple! It relies on surface tension to bond with the surface - no adhesives, no mess, just tough durable protection from damage for a whole year if need be!

Shhh...5 - Hands!

We at Spraylat think time is too valuable to be stood around removing protective film piece by piece... and then having the trouble of cleaning the adhesive off after! That's why our Protectapeel coatings are the best for the job! Protectapeel is simply removed (in one piece!) by hand peeling, leaving the surface undamaged and completely dirt and adhesive free! Giving you time for more important things!

Don't Just Take Our Word For It!

'Musketeer Solutions had a great experience engaging with the Spraylat team. From first discussions through to the final application of Protectapeel, we found the staff were helpful, pro-active and highly professional. We would certainly consider using Spraylat again for other applications' - Steve Welburn, Musketeer Solutions Ltd
